

Frequently Asked Questions

Answers to common questions about Koozakar journals

Cannot find the answer to your question? Please contact our team or send us an email.

1. Are Koozakar journals legitimate?

Yes Koozakar journals operate within a structured scholarly publishing framework. Our journals are ISSN-registered, DOI-enabled through Crossref, and supported by peer review, including double-blind review where applicable. They are guided by clearly stated editorial, ethics, correction, and retraction policies, and are managed by named editors and scientific editorial boards.

2. Do Koozakar journals have Impact Factors?

No not all Koozakar journals currently have formal Impact Factors. However, journal quality and scholarly value are not determined by a single metric alone. We continue to strengthen citation records, editorial consistency, discoverability, and indexing credentials as part of our long-term quality and visibility strategy.

3. Are Koozakar journals indexed?

Yes Koozakar journals benefit from Google Scholar discoverability and DOI metadata indexing. In addition, some journals, such as GJESS and AJSPIM, are already indexed in DOAJ, Ask. Library, R Discovery by Editage, and Scientific Indexing Services (SIS), among others.

4. How is article quality ensured?

Article quality is strengthened through peer review, editorial screening, and ethical checks. Depending on the journal, manuscripts undergo double-blind or editor-mediated peer review, alongside checks for plagiarism, authorship integrity, conflicts of interest, and methodological or conceptual rigor. Reviewer feedback is expected to be constructive and improvement-focused.

5. What makes Koozakar different from predatory journals?

Koozakar does not operate like a predatory publisher. We do not promise fake metrics, instant indexing, or guaranteed acceptance. We do not hide editorial leadership, and we do not charge deceptive or undisclosed fees. Our publishing model is anchored in transparency, mentorship, and scholarly integrity. All editorial activities are overseen by highly esteemed academics.

6. Are Koozakar journals open access?

Yes Koozakar journals support open-access publishing. This means published work can reach a global readership, increase visibility and citation potential, and contribute to greater knowledge equity across regions and institutions.

7. Will publishing with Koozakar help my academic career?

Yes publishing with Koozakar can support your academic development through ethical publishing practices, DOI-traceable scholarship, international visibility, and constructive peer review. Our goal is to help authors build credible scholarly records over time.

8. How long does peer review take?

Peer review timelines may vary by journal and manuscript type, but in general, the initial screening may take about 5 to 10 days, while the average peer review period is around 16 weeks. Revision timelines depend on how quickly authors are able to address comments and resubmit.

9. Can early-career researchers submit to Koozakar journals?

Yes Koozakar welcomes submissions from scholars across the world, especially those from underrepresented regions. This includes graduate students, early-career researchers, and emerging scholars seeking a credible and supportive publishing pathway.

10. Does Koozakar support reviewers and editors?

Yes Koozakar values the contributions of reviewers and editors. Support may include reviewer recognition through certificates or acknowledgments, editorial training and guidance, and transparent editorial workflows that promote accountability and quality.

11. What is Koozakar's long-term vision?

Koozakar's long-term vision is built around integrity, mentorship, visibility, and sustainability. We aim to strengthen scholarly publishing through mentorship-driven support, credible editorial processes, wider research visibility, and systems that sustain long-term academic impact.

Koozakar is committed to mentorship-driven publishing that combines scholarly standards with fairness, guidance, and meaningful editorial support.